

In the great sorrow at not seeing Sītā there, Rāma cried, “O My dear! Where have You gone? Why are You not here as usual?”

Rāma with His sword cut off the right arm of Kabandha, the monster which had no head and had its mouth on its belly; Lakṣmaṇa cut off it's left arm.

Śabarī feeding berries to Rāma.